Richmond Cattle Market, November 19. The heavy supply of cattle that has been urged upon this market for the last several weeks, has receded the demand to such an extent as to redose the prices to the very lowest ebb. The sales at the scales this week amounted to 265 bead, at prices ranging from $2.25(@$4.25 gross, the latter price only for an extra fine lot of that averaged 1,395 ths. gross weight-and they come.

The general short corn crop has compelled many teders to send their cattle to market much earlier man usual, hence the indications are that from langary to April or May next, beef cattle will be sarce and prices will range high. Those who are able to feed may do well to take a bint from the agas of the times. torn-fed hogs are selling at $8@$8.25. No

Gale on the St. Lawrence.

MONTREAL, C. E., Nov. 21 .- A terrific gale prevailed on the St. Lawrence, below this place, on Saturday night. The ship John Bull went ashore on the lower end of the Island of Orleans. The weather was so thick and rainy that the steamship North American was obliged to anchor off the Pillars, from half-past two o'clock on Saturday afternoon till vesterday (Sunday) morning. She passed Farther Point soon after one 'clock this morning.

The weather is now clear, with a strong westerly wind. It froze hard here last Frightened to Death.

A death of a most extraordinary character took place at Ottawa, Canada, on the 2d inst., the particulars of which are these:-Some men were about to slaughter an ox, and had attached one end of a rope to the horns, and passed the other through the door, into the slaughter house, and were driving the animal in. The boy, Simon O'Donnell, held a candle-stick in one corner of the shed, to throw light on the proceedings. When the beast was driven in, it appears that it made a sudden movement to wards the corner where the boy was, and was instantly seized by the nose by one of the buther's dogs, when it roared out loudly, and the boy dropped to the ground in an instant, perfectly dead. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that the death of the boy was occasioned by "fright." A despatch from Charlestown, says: -"We have now one thousand men under arms here, and it is the intention of the Governor to keep them here until after the execution. The excitement has abated, though the rumor of an attempt to rescue has been somewhat strengthened by a despatch from U. S. Marshal Johnson of Ohio, giving an assurance that a party is arming and organizing in that State under command of John Brown, ir., a son of Ossawatomie. Gov. Wise will start for Richmond to-morrow (22d instant."

Fred. Douglass, the negro incendiary, safe in Canada or on his way to England, utters through his newspaper at Rochester diatribes of the most truculent sedition. He endorses the felony and treason of John Brown as the most righteous and holy of good works, for which Brown will wear a martyr's crown An accessory before the fact, black Douglass thus makes himself also an accessory after

OBITUARY.

THE LATE JOHN HOOFF, ESQ .- A brief account of the life and character of the lamented Mr Hoore, was very graphically noticed in the Alexandria Gazette of the 21st inst., leaving, in fact, but little further to add.

Mr. Hooff had naturally a high order of intel lect, very clear and correct views of business mat ters, and at all times and upon all occasions, very centle and personally kind, but firm in the dis harge of his highly responsible duties. The renarkable equinimity of his temper was never dis urbed-on the contrary, he was uniformly cool just, and perfectly upright, through a long and well spent life. He has left a devoted and disconolate widow, son and daughter to deplore their loss, but their loss is his eternal gain.

In his death there was not the slightest contrac tion of the brow-on the contrary, his counter ance was like one in a sweet and quiet sleep, with out a single wrinkle on his manly face. He must have died without a struggle. Mr. Hooff was obeyed his commandments, and died in peace with the world, and an humble and firm reliance upon the mercy of Almighty God, and forgiveness of his offences, if any he had committed, through a crucified Redeemer. In the spirit world, to which his pure soul has ascended, a lambent flame of glory will there surround him we hope, we POTATOES, HERRING, VINEGAR, &c.- humbly pray, forever, and ever.

The Chinese and Anglo-French War. The Overland China Mail, publishes a letter describing Mr. Ward's journey, in which the writer says: Twice the American Minister dined with the Imperial Commissioners, and once they with him and his suite. The entertainments by the Commissioners were on both occasions most sumptuous, and when the Commissioners were complimented for their liberalty, courtesy and good taste, they replied that a more magnificent and delicate dinner could not be got up for the highest State dignitaries, or even for the Emperor himself. On one of these occasions Kweliang adverted to the late unhappy occurrences at the mouth of the Peiho, when he remarked with an emotion which was truly touching, and with all the marks of sincerity, that if his age did not entitle him to common marks of respect from Mr. Bruce, certainly his position did. the Emperor alone being the only individual above him in the Empire.

He asserted that the Government was altogether sincere in its professed intentions to observe all the stipulations of the treaty with England, and both expected and wished the English minister to visit Pekin, for whose reception and safe conduct imperial orders had been sent to the Governor-General of the Province, as in the case of the American Minister; that he respected, and the Emperor and Government respected, the English nation, whose intelligence and energy he ommended, and with whom commerce was mutually advantageous. The Chinese Government desired to live on amicable relations with the English, and hoped the present troubles might be adjusted happily, without any more bloodshed. They had not dreamed tany act of violence or initiation of war till they heard the roar of cannon in the attack on the forts at the mouth of the Peiho. That when he and his associate had remain ed six months at Shanghai at the earnest request of Lord Elgin, and had done so with nuch sacrifice and difficulty from the demand for their services at the capital, Mr. Bruce refused the common and cheap civility of seeing them, and even doubled the iusult by sending them the most discourteous, rude and insulting letters. He did not blame the English or the French for the unprovoked attack upon the forts; he blamed only Mr. Bruce, who ordered, and was alone responsible for the consequences.

For my part, I am fully persuaded the hinese intended to fulfil the late treaties .-All the arrangements were found to have been made for Mr. Ward's visit to Pekin under the imperial order. When the ratifications of the American treaty were exchanged at Pei-tsang, Mr. Ward remarked, at the close of the ceremony, that he hoped the treaty would be a bond of perpetual peace between two nations, upon which the Governor-General, a man of active intellect and marked ability, replied with great emphasis that the observance of the conditions by each party would be still better. To the same effect were the incidental remarks of the Commissioners in free and honest conversation.

It does not belong to me to comment upon the Peiho affair, though I cannot but express my admiration of the bravery of the Englishmen who fell in it, and equally of those who survived. Errors may have been committed on both sides and blame justly attach to both. But need more blood be shed? Must thousands of ignorant men and women perish for the indiscretions of two or three individuals? And that, too, when a satisfactory adjustment could so easily be made? Heaven forbid! Human-

I can only add that all the difficulty expeienced by Mr. Ward in fulfilling his mission to the capital, arose from his persistent refusal to perform the Ko-tow, or head-knocking, so degrading in the eyes of the western nations, Commissioners proposed a compromise, consenting to his falling upon one knee, and mitting altogether the head-knocking. The Emperor expressed his desire to see the American Minister, and every effort was made to induce him to conform to the modified form of the rite. But all in vain; and hence the failure of an audience from the Emperor. Still Mr Ward's refusal, when he was within the walls of the Imperial City, attended by a suite composed of twenty individuals. without the least military force or protection, may induce the Court to make the ceremonies upon presentation to the Emperor more in accordance with Western usages and ideas, and thus a real service may be rendered, both to the Chinese and to future ambassadors.

[COMMUNICATED. You have seen by the papers, that the barns, stackyards and implements of certain persons who served as Jurors on the late trials of Brown and his confederates at Charlestown, have been burned. BY YESTERDAY EVENING'S MAILS. Letters to Gov. Wise.

The information and intelligence that induced Gov. Wise to move forward the troops to Charlestown, so long before the execution, were contained in despatches and letters which too plainly indicated a settled purpose of rescue. In the opinion of Gov. Wise the presence of a large body of well appointed ons would advise evil disposed persons of the folly of such an attempt, and thus be the means of preserving life. To have delayed advancing the troops would have encouraged the Abolitionists to prosecute their organization for a rescue, and enabled them to impose on the thoughtless by misrepresenting the danger, and underrating the number of troops that now guard the prisoner. The intelligence which induced Colonel Davis to telegraph for five hundred troops was communicated by a respectable and responsible citizen of Virginia, just from Ohio, and whose statement was every way entitled to full faith and credit. This intelligence was not communicated to Gov. Wise, but merely the order for five hundred troops to be immediately dispatched-which was promptly complied with, without inquiry as to the necessity for them.

That the public may see the fixed determination of a large portion of the North to attempt a rescue, we subjoin extracts from letters from reliable persons. From these letters we have omitted all portions that well provided organization.

The excited condition of the public mind around Charlestown, caused by these rumors, and the acts of incendiarism that have destroyed the property of the jurors, would justify an augmentation of the forces, if for no other purpose, to prevent an outraged people from seeking vengeance upon the authors of their wrong.

Let it be remembered that these letters are from reliable persons, with names attached, and that they speak of what they know and have seen. They bring no idle and irresponsible rumor, but relate facts that cannot but convince the most credulous that there are those in the Northern States who have been planning the rescue of John Brown .--The presence of a large military force would, it was hoped, arrest this organization, convince its leaders of their folly, and show the country that Virginia will enforce the judgments of her courts.-Richmond Enquirer. Extract from a Letter from Lewisbury,

County, Pa., November 15, 1859. As a friend to the Constitution and the Union, I feel it my duty to apprise you of a able this to be done, and possibly to assist sworn, secret and lawless band of fanatical abolitionists and Black Republicans now forming in this, as well as several other counties in this State. The principal organization is in this village, and auxiliary societies exist in the neighboring towns. They call themselves 'The Noble Sons of Liberty,' and as far as I can learn number about five hundred in all, and are led by Capt. Jas. Smelly, alias "Limber Jim," an ultra abolitionist of this village. They are armed with a pair found to measure 23 inches in length, and of Colt's Revolvers each, and design drop- weighed two scruples more than two ounces ping into Charlestown and the adjacent and three quarters. places by ones and twos, so as to avoid suspicion, and when all are collected at Charlesown, at a certain signal, pounce upon the iail and demand the release of that old vil lain, John Brown, now a prisoner in the

This organization is composed exclusively of crazy abolitionists and runaway negroes, and yet their plans are very extensive, and apparently practicable, and if carried out, well calculated to insure the accomplishment of the object. If, however, they should fail in the attempt to release Brown, they propose to wreak their vengeance upon these who have been instrumental in securing that justice for the criminal, which he so richly deserves. My informant is a man of character, and I believe of strict integrity, who is identified in some manner with the organization himself, though I have endeavored to dissonde him from engaging in such a perilous enterprise. All that I have learned in relation to this affair was imparted to me in confidence, but an irresistible sense of duty, and the hope that the whole affair may be frustrated. To extract the jagged mass of iron thus sunk in the ethmoidal and spheniodal cells, was found hopelessly impossible. But strange to tell after the inflammation subsided. Mr. Fretz recovered rapidly, his general health was unimpaired, and he returned to his regiment with this singular appendage firmly embedded behind the bones of his face. He took his turn of duty as usual, attained the command of his company, participated in all the enjoyments of the mess room, and died eight years afterward, on the 1st of April, 1836. not from any consequences of this fearful wound, but from tever and inflammation, brought on by other causes. So little was he inconvenienced by the presence of the strange body in his palate, that he was accustomed with his finger partially to undo the serew, which but for its extreme length, he might altogether have withdrawn. To enby this means the extraction of the breech itself through the original orifice (which never entirely closed,) an attempt was made made in 1835 to take off a portion of the screw with a file, but after having cut it three parts through, the operation was interrupted chiefly owing to the carelessness of Captain Fretz whose death occurred before the at tempt could be resumed. The piece of iron on being removed after his decease, was
